

How are property impacts determined during the environmental process?

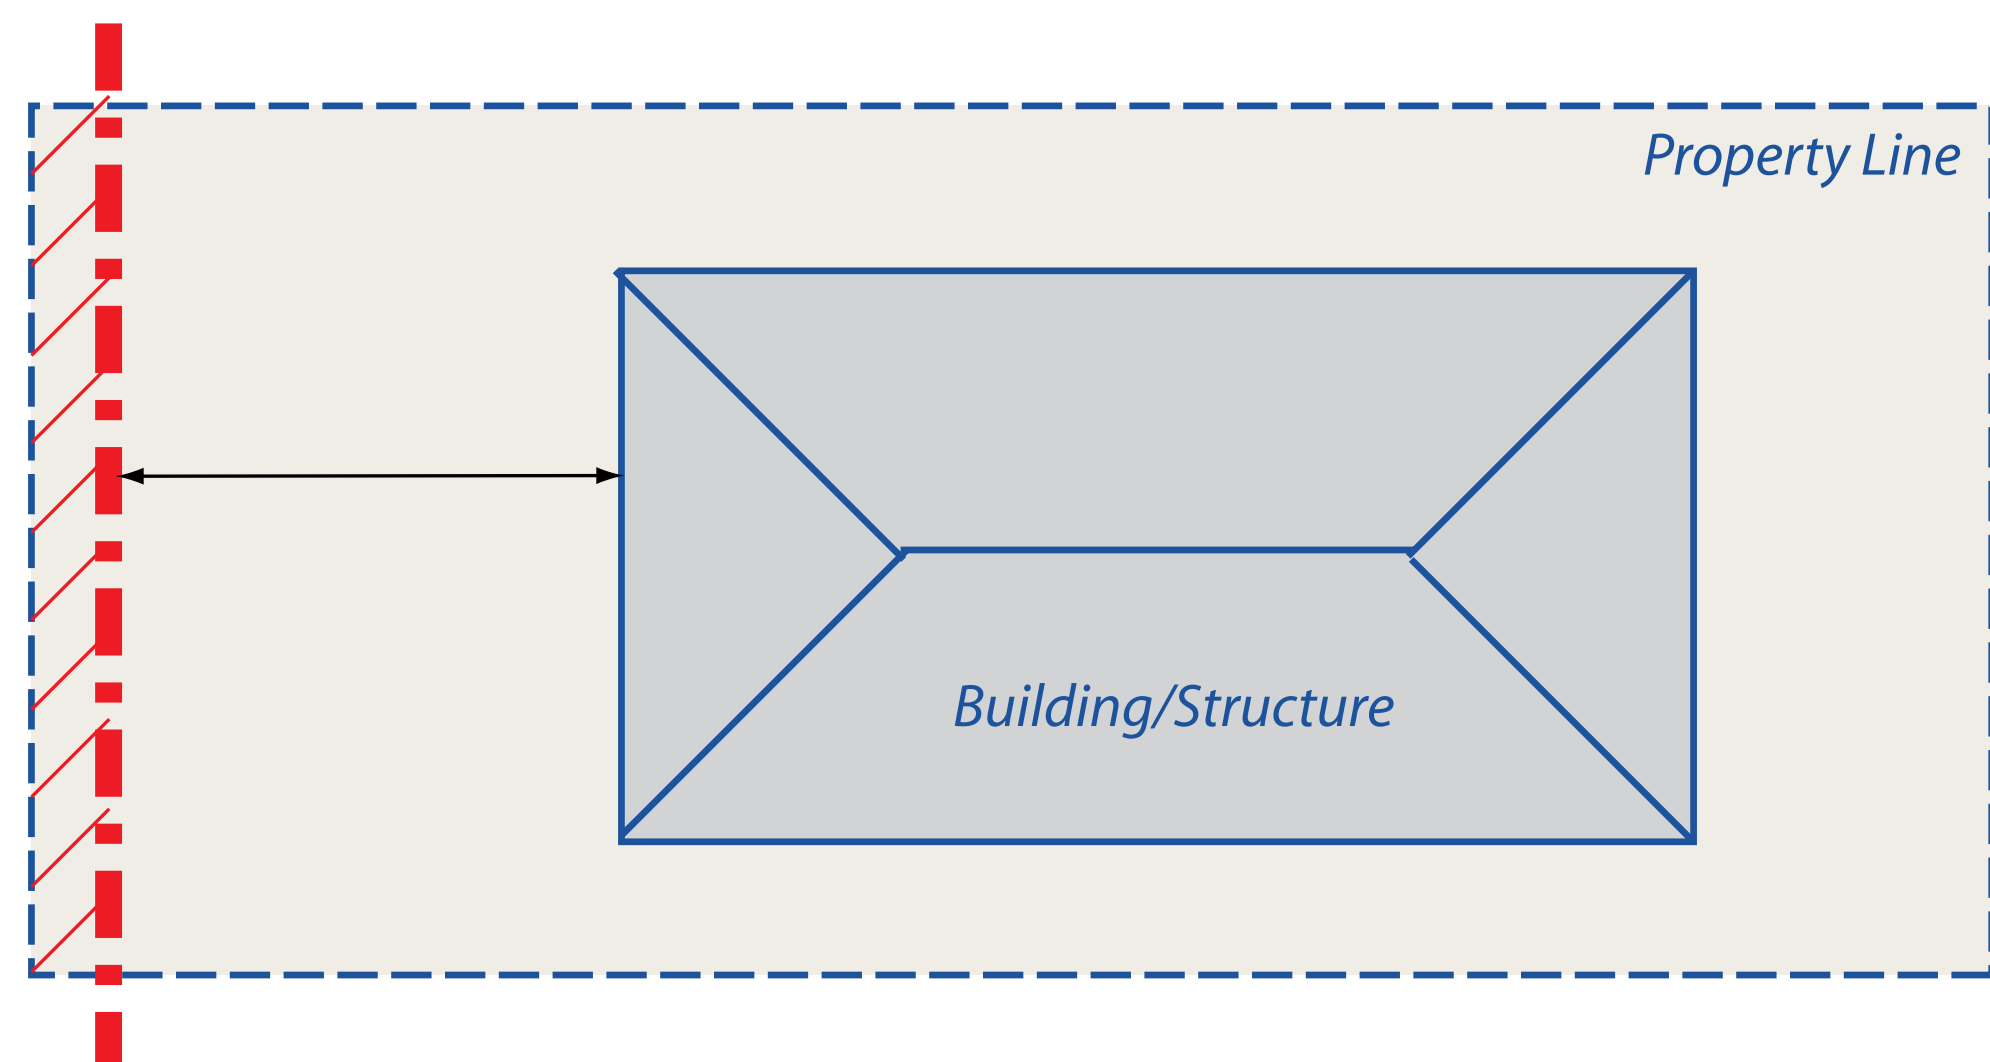

Relocation

A property impact is classified as a “relocation” if the right-of-way (ROW) goes directly through a structure.

Potential Relocation

A property impact is classified as a “potential relocation” if the right-of-way comes within 15 feet of a structure.

Strip Take

A property impact is classified as a “strip take” if the right-of-way impacts the property but is more than 15 feet from a structure.

Property impacts can change as the project design progresses. The project team will not know exact impacts to properties until the environmental process and final design are both complete. UDOT Right-of-Way personnel are available to answer questions regarding the UDOT property acquisition process.*
